The Duke premiere of (Dis)Honesty: The Truth About Lies

Please make plans to join us for one of the three Duke Premiere screenings of the documentary “(Dis)Honesty — The Truth About Lies,” produced by Prof. Dan Ariely with the filmmaker Yael Melamede. This documentary illuminates why people lie (often to themselves), how they do it and the fallout and impact. Dr. Ariely will participate in a Q&A following each show. Prof. Ariely is the James B. Duke University Professor of Behavioral Economics. Food will be provided so please register for one of the three available event times:

- Nov 30: Hock Auditorium 4:30 – 6:30 pm (refreshments provided)
- Dec 2: Perkins Library Room 217 from 11 am - 1 pm (lunch provided)
- Dec 3: Nicholas School Field Auditorium 1-3 pm (refreshments provided)

Biospecimens Index – Linking researchers with available specimens

Do you need human biospecimens for your research, or do you have a biospecimen resource that may be available for collaboration? The Index of Biospecimens is the “eHarmony” for translational researchers. This easy-to-browse, online catalog provides summary data about existing Duke biospecimen resources. For more information read the FAQ on this resource.
